

Benjamin Pacini

Bad dad jokes.

Edit My Profile

Joined 3 years ago

benjaminpacini

LinkedIn

benjamin.pacini

Overview Questions Best Practices

Benjamin Pacini commented • April 19

Outsmart Your Brain

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

@Steve Hunsaker this is great! I love Willingham's work, and might even make this a text for my ED 304 class someday (it's edpsych!) This is really good stuff, thank you thank you!

April 19 Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini commented • February 15

How does the grading scheme affect students' taking responsibility for their learning?

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

We're talking about grades and behaviorism in my ED 304 class right now (edpsych and human development) and I might just show them this rather than lecture! Great work Neal!

(Also, I'm an Alfie Kohn skeptic, but I think everyone needs a good strong dose of ungrading to be a succesful teacher!)

February 15 Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini commented • January 13

Fostering Connections with First-year and First-generation College Students

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

Well done sir.

January 13 1 like Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini commented • January 13

Open Educational Resources with Royce Kimmons

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

This is awesome. I'm going to be building an educational psychology textbook this semester, and am hoping to publish on books.byui.edu! Very excited about this.

January 13 1 like Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini commented • December 8, 2022

Edutopia's Top 10 Research Articles for 2022 List!

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

A few reflections:

A general reflection first: I read studies widely, but only remember a fraction of them. I don't think that's bad though--because while I can't cite all the things I read, it trains my instincts pretty well. It was fun reading this and going "I'd bet the answer is __" and being right for 90% ...

Read more...

December 8, 2022 2 likes Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini December 8, 2022 • Posted a new best practice

Edutopia's Top 10 Research Articles for 2022 List!

One of my favorite things every year is Edutopia's list of top 10 research articles from each year, typically published in December. It's a great little way to digest a little bit of the education research literature, and also improve your...

Learning and Teaching December 8, 2022

Benjamin Pacini commented • December 8, 2022

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

@Brent Schmidt, happy to anytime, my friend.

I have started switching to oral exams rather than quizzes or anything else. It's taken some refinement, but students come prepared and eager to discuss, and that's a really fun change. They also can sense that my goal is to get them talking--not just to assess whether they did it ...

Read more...

December 8, 2022 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini commented • December 8, 2022

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

@Donald Hansen, one of my students was raving about you just today, so if you say it works I'll believe you!

Btw, Marco Polo can be used in a pinch as a video discussion board. FlipGrid too. Something about being in-person for the discussion is just so much stronger....

Read more...

December 8, 2022 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini commented • December 8, 2022

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

@Seth Robins , great application and question. I feel like I'm a much better teacher just for always asking "can I solve this accommodation request permanently?" when I get one. It's a little more work on the front-end, but it's really helpful.

As for switching activities, my sarcastic style probably didn't help here. I meant "you should...

Read more...

December 8, 2022 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Users > Benjamin Pacini

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

@Matt Webb could not agree more. Well said. In public schools I was always terrified to give my opinion. I try, now, to make clear that it's only my opinion and that they should feel free to disagree with me, but that part of education is weighing expert opinion for themselves. I don't want them to think like me, but I do want them to think!

December 8, 2022 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini commented • December 8, 2022

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

@Mark Nance, I've found some really good research articles on this lately that I have to tell you about! I watched a podcast on it, and it really resonated with me. I reached out to the author on Twitter, and she gave me a bunch of large-scale studies and meta-analyses (I know, Twitter actually did something good! I'm shocked too!)...

Read more...

December 8, 2022 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini commented • December 8, 2022

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

Well, folks, I'm overwhelmed--in a good way!--that this got so much attention. I wrote it on a lark, and really enjoyed putting it together, but never thought anyone would take it seriously! My tone is far more combative than I meant it to be, but it was almost entirely because I was having fun pretending to lecture myself, nothing more! (And I already disagree with myself on...

Read more...

December 8, 2022 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini commented • September 20, 2022

Inviting Differing Opinions into the Classroom

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

Love this. One thing I've tried doing is playing the role of the "loyal opposition" if there is a need to make sure that students are leaving understanding a good version of the other side of the argument.

September 20, 2022 Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini September 19, 2022 • Posted a new question

Instructional Do's & Don'ts

On a whim, I recently asked on my Facebook page for some instructional "don't do's." I thought it'd be fun to see what sounded like a good idea, but actually can be damaging. I figured it would be pretty slow and mostly limited ...

Learning and Teaching September 19, 2022

Benjamin Pacini commented • July 12, 2021

Mastery-Learning Meetup?

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

Reminder: meeting today at crossroads at noon! See some of you soon!

July 12, 2021 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

Benjamin Pacini commented • July 7, 2021

Mastery-Learning Meetup?

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

Hi all! I just spoke with Brian, because I LOVE the idea of talking about a thinkshop, and I think we'll be free to chat Monday the 12th at noon. Details forthcoming. I'll email folks so they know about it there too, but wanted to give a heads up now. Also, if you can't make it, we'll try to jot down some notes for folks! (We won't be able to pick a time that works for everyone, but here...

Read more...

July 7, 2021 Like Edit Recommend this Answer

 Benjamin Pacini June 25, 2021 • Posted a new question

Mastery-Learning Meetup?

As the semester comes to an end, would anyone be interested in meeting up to talk about what they've learned, what they're doing, and what they want to try? I'd love to find time to meet up for lunch and have a fun discussion...

Mastery Learning Practitioners June 25, 2021

Benjamin Pacini commented • June 8, 2021

Progressing Teacher Course

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

The PTC is awesome. Highly recommend. I mean, everyone's done it, so I'm preaching to the choir, but it's great.

June 8, 2021 Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini commented • June 8, 2021

Progressing Teacher Course

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

The PTC is awesome. Highly recommend. I mean, everyone's done it, so I'm preaching to the choir, but it's great.

June 8, 2021 Like Edit

Benjamin Pacini commented • May 4, 2021

Examples of authentic assessment?

Benjamin Pacini Bad dad jokes.

In education, we try to use teaching (with a formal evaluative rubric like those used in public schools) as our top assessments, and that makes good sense to me. The goal isn't whether you can fill out a multiple-choice test about teaching--we want to see you teach.
In fact, if anything, I wish we'd dispense with some of the lesson plan requirements in favor of...

Read more...

May 4, 2021 1 like Like Edit

© BYU-Idaho Learning and Teaching

Terms & Conditions Privacy Statement

built with