Faculty Development Plan and Annual Stewardship Interview

Name - Benjamin Pacini	Dept: Elementary, Early, & Special Educ	2023

Reflect

In preparation for your stewardship interview, we invite you to reflect on the five categories of faculty stewardship

Discipleship

1. What has gone well this past year? I've really tried to use every class as an opportunity to teach about gospel principles: in ED 211, I talk deliberately about the need to be discerning; In ED 200 I focus very deliberately on how to teach according to the gospel. While I feel good

2. What is my plan to improve? I need to focus more on not merely teaching gospel principles but teaching specifically about Jesus Christ. According to Elder Uchtdorf, we need to be testifying of Jesus Christ in everything we do. This is something I want to focus on.

Effective and Progressing Teaching

1. What has gone well this past year? I'm still alive! Lol. I think my 211 class is a fundamentally different class than any other I've taught, and it's really quite exciting. My teacher evaluations are strong, and I'm quite pleased with them. At the same time, I'm so focused on doing so

2. What is my plan to improve? I… don't know, honestly. I mostly just hope that I can get 304 under my belt and do a good job on it. I'm interested, too, in helping with behavior management.

Student Success-Focused Activities and Involvement

1. What has gone well this past year? I've loved helping with the Tri-Ed society. It's been really fun participating with them and building a good program.

2. What is my plan to improve? I wonder if there aren't ways to grow that program better. I'm not sure how, however.

Currency in Discipline

1. What has gone well this past year? I have really loved working with the Campus Curriculum Development team to revamp 211. They have been such a blessing. Additionally, I've been pursuing my doctorate, and have been doing tons of research on teacher credentialing, praxis

2. What is my plan to improve? I need to finish my dissertation lolololol!

Citzenship and Service

1. What has gone well this past year? I've been asked to lead ED 304 in the future, which makes me a little nervous--but worth doing. I've also participated in the Mastery-based learning thinkshop, two summer workshops, a brownbag lunch, and various other activities.

2. What is my plan to improve? My primary focus is to ensure that ED 304 gets off the ground the right way. I am also concerned with doing less: I worry that I've overextended myself, and need to focus on family and dissertation work for a time.

Action Plan

From the categories above, identify two or three areas that you want to focus on improving for this coming year. Counsel with your department chair as you consider activities that help you grow professionally and that are high impact opportunities to bless your students.

Focus Category: Discipleship

Goal: I've been encouraged to begin doing some serious writing. I worry about this: I have so much going on. But I think starting to occasionally jot things down seems like a good idea. I'd like to begin drafting	Action Plan/Activities: Begin writing a manuscript.	Resources/Funding: None. I might ask for a couple of books to read, but nothing else.
How does this plan relate to your future 12 credit faculty development leave? I don't have any clue what I will be doing for my 12 credie leave! I've recently been encouraged to write a book, which is something I might be interested in. I'd love your thoughts on how to thinka bout this

Focus Category: Progressing Teaching

Goal: Learn about, develop, and incorporate a case study in a class. Make 304 a great class.	Action Plan/Activities: Have a 304 party! I'd like to invite several students to help me build 304, and build a great class. I'm excited to pull this off.	Resources/Funding: None needed.
